LEGISLATIVE RECORDS I: SPECIAL COMMITTEES

Periodically the legislature will establish ad hoc committees to investigate certain issues that are deemed to merit special attention. The findings of these committees often form the basis for legislation, or serve as good sources of information on topics of major concern. Given the value of these records, the Archives has prepared this list of subjects considered by select legislative committees. The papers generated and collected by these study groups are available for examination by all interested parties (numbers in parentheses denote record groups). Given the size of many of these files, interested researchers are encouraged to visit the Archives in person.
